At the third agricultural show in the Bathurst district held at O'Connell Plains in 1861 the first protest against a judge's decision was made.

"A ploughman called Joseph Goodacre (ideal name!) wrote to the "Free Press" complaining that the judges of the ploughing section had erred badly, and claiming to be supported in this view by several people, including some committeemen. Oddly enough, Goodacre's protest was directed not against the awarding of the first prize, which he did not dispute, but at the awarding of the second prize." No action was taken.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY:

Please be aware that Fireworks & Pyrotechnic displays will be conducted on the Main Arena at approximately 8.30 pm on FRIDAY & SATURDAY evenings. Exhibitors & owners are reminded that the safety & control of their horses & livestock are their own responsibility.

FEATURE BREED - HIGHLAND

The Highland is the oldest registered breed of cattle, with the first herd book being established in 1885. Sometimes referred to as "The Grand Old Breed", Highlands are arguably one of the most majestic breeds, easily recognisable and once seen, and can never be forgotten.

Despite the long horns and unusual appearance, the Highland is considered an even-tempered animal - bulls and cows. They can be broken to lead as easily as any other breed, even more so because of the Highland's superior intelligence.

The Breed Ideal (or Breed Standard) represents what is considered to be the perfect conformation traits of a Highland. It is important for breeders to be familiar with and consider the breed ideal to protect the integrity and standard of the Highland cattle breed in Australia.

Type: The head, horns, neck, body, hindquarters and legs should be in perfect balance.

Head: The hair between the horns, known as the dossan, should be wide, long - reaching to the muzzle - and thick.

Horns: The horns in the bull should be strong, but not too heavy (heavy horns are undesirable), and come out of the head level, curving slightly forward.

Neck: The neck should be of good length, allowing for natural lift to the head. A bull should show masculinity, but this development should not be excessive at an early age.

Body & Hindquarters: From the shoulder back, the top of the animal should be straight, with no hollows, and as wide as possible - particularly between the hooks, or hips, and should not be too hard, which indicates bone on which no flesh will develop.

Legs: The legs should be sturdy and straight with good bone and a good covering of hair, and the animal should be seen to be walking freely and easily, the legs not brushing against each other but set well outside the body.

Hair: Highland cattle have two coats of hair. The outer coat is long and strong and is presumably meant by nature to keep the winter weather away from the skin. The under coat is soft and fluffy to keep their bodies warm.

Sheath & Scrotum: Bulls' sheaths should not be loose or pendulous. The scrotum should contain two testicles well let down of good and even size.

Udder: The udder on females should not be fleshy, coming well forward in line with the body and well up behind; with four teats well apart and of even moderate size.
